Regional Committee Set On West Andover

New Code For Mail

The Post Office's answer to speedy and correct mail delivery all over the country goes into effect July 1 - but you've got to memorize a few numerals to use it.

Postmaster Francis J. Mooney announces that Andover's ZIP code is 018 - plus the digits 10 for every patron who has mail delivered from the office, and 11 for those getting mail via the Shaw-shen branch. Ballardvale's code - that's a separate Postoffice - is 01820.

The theory behind the new code is that nation-wide usage will allow speedier delivery, and cut mistakes to a minimum.

Mr. Mooney insisted, while outlining the new procedures, that the effectiveness depends on everyone remembering to use the code.

A correct address will have, following the normal sequence of words, the full numerical code, (Continued on Page Three)

A 45.3 acre site on River rd. is certain to be acquired for the Regional Vocational School, providing test borings prove the absence of ledge.

Andover's representative on the Regional Committee, Fred Tarbox, assured the Selectmen Monday night that the site is the very best that could be found in the Greater Lawrence area.

He said 11 possible locations have been viewed by the Committee.

The local site is located across River rd. from the old North Dis- (Continued on Page Eight)

Charter Study Group Seeks More Latitude

The town manager study committee met for the first time Tuesday night - and promptly decided to ask the Selectmen's permission to broaden the scope of the study.

Harris N. Sanfilippo, newly-designated chairman, will discuss the subject with the Selectmen, who have set the ground rules for the study.

Nearly all of Tuesday's meeting was concerned with members' feelings that the study could not accomplish much unless departmental functions, and inevitably personalities, are discussed. The original charge from the Selectmen asked that these subjects be avoided.

There was general understanding at the session that the purpose of the group is to see whether the town manager charter is functioning as intended, and if not, to determine whether the charter can be strengthened or whether the fault lies in the implementation of the document.

Members of the Committee promptly decided that this can not be done unless there is some investigation of departmental functions, to see whether these conform to the original intent of the charter.

Mr. Sanfilippo emphasized on numerous occasions that the Committee must maintain objectivity in its study.

He agreed with one member that it is possible for the Committee to recommend changes, even to a different form of charter, if this is believed necessary. But he also pointed out that there should be no prior judgment that problems exist.

As far as personalities were concerned, members emphasized that a study of departments will necessarily include observations on individuals.

But Mr. Sanfilippo stressed that the competency of any individual is not to be determined - this, he said, should be determined by the individual's superiors, and handled through normal department routine.

Ground Broken For Construction

Ground breaking took place last Friday for Lawrence General Hospital's $3.5 million building program that calls for $1.5 million in voluntary contributions, the community's largest fund raising effort for a non profit institution organized 88 years ago for "care of children of working women, and Hospital for the needy".

A new seven-story Hospital wing will provide space for 120 new patient beds, bringing the total to 300, six major operating rooms, kitchen and dining departments, laundry, and other needed facilities for a Hospital patient area comprising Andover, Lawrence, Methuen, North Andover and Salem, New Hampshire.

Occupancy of private and semi-private patient beds in the first months of 1963 ran 97.9 percent of capacity. The present surgical suite, built 25 years ago, has been outmoded by the rapid advance of medical science.

A federal grant of $1.75 million to the Hospital is the largest approved to date in Massachusetts under the Public Works Acceleration Act for a hospital project, according to the office of Dr. A. Daniel Rubenstein, director, state bureau of hospital facilities.

The balance needed for the improvement and expansion building program must come from individuals and corporate citizens of the areas served by the Hospital.

Wielding nickel plated shovels to turn over the first earth were six top Merrimack Valley civic, business, and professional leaders actively working for the Hospital: Dean K. Webster Jr., chairman of Hospital trustees and board chairman of H. K. Webster Company; Arthur Sweeney, campaign chairman and board chairman of Bay State Merchants National Bank, president of Broadway Savings Bank, and partner in the law firm of Sweeney and Sargent; Mrs. Abbot Stevens, honorary campaign chairman; Dr. John R. McDermott, chairman of the Hospital's active medical staff of 143 physicians; Dr. Milton J. Meyers, campaign vice chairman, orthodontist and chairman of the Andover School Committee; and Daniel F. Cahill, campaign vice chairman, Lawrence postmaster and former special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Whole Town Grows

In recent months we have heard the suggestion that all areas of town government should put building needs in the background, because of required school construction.

To be sure, we can see the wisdom of planning to spread out construction over a number of years, when this is possible.

But it occurs to us, as it must to others, that the very reasons which compel us to embark on school construction also require expanded facilities throughout the town.

So it is virtually impossible to let all other municipal construction go by, while concentrating on schools. The population growth demands so many other town services.

Rather, we foresee increasing responsibility for the capital expenditures committee, recently appointed by the Selectmen. That group could schedule the projects, with some over-all objectivity.

Lingering Doubt

We view the probability of having the vocational school within the town borders with mixed feelings.

All that has been said about the advantages of the school to the area is true. And probably the site on River rd., across from North st., is one of the best available.

Yet there is a lingering doubt in our minds as to the ultimate benefit of removing real estate from taxation, as will be the result in this case.

We have also wondered some about placing the school in an area where close to 100 percent of the students must be transported. There is no public transportation to the area. About five percent of the students will come from Andover, leaving 95 percent of the enrollment for Lawrence, Methuen and North Andover. Obviously transportation must be provided, and this could be an increasing annual burden.

The Regional School Committee has the authority to acquire a site, without consultation with the communities. It is reported that 11 sites have been studied, and the River rd. area has been chosen. So there's little to be gained in terms of a review of the site.

But we'll always wonder whether or not, from the Andover view point, this is the wisest course of action.

Protection From Bikes

A few weeks ago, one of our readers suggested that children on bicycles be prevented from riding helter-skelter along Main st., during the course of the Memorial Day parade.

We have another one to add.

Last weekend's Sidewalk Bazaar was a real success; the crowds were dense, and the street was full of pedestrians.

Yet many children - some appearing to be teen-agers and others a few years younger - zipped through the crowd on their bikes. They disregarded the safety of pedestrians, by weaving through the crowds and up and down the street.

The young people who have so little regard for the rights of people on foot should be, in some way, taught that their actions are wrong. Certainly the police can't patrol such an event sufficiently to keep wild bicycle riders under control, there aren't enough men for that.

Perhaps it comes down to the issuance of an official ultimatum that bicycles may not be ridden on the town streets, if their owners do not show sufficient care for others. One way or another, the relatively few children who ride this way must be brought under control.

Last Year's Best

Although there may be some question about the following books being the most unusual of all the thousands published last year, they were considered outstanding enough, by the judges of the Notable Books Council, to be worthy of inclusion on their list for 1962. Here are a few from that selection, all available at the library: The Slave, Singer - love story of a Jewish slave and his Polish master's daughter; Eero Saarinen On His Work, Saarinen - selection of buildings 1947-1964, with statements by the architect; John Adams, Smith - excellent evocation of Adams and his era (2 vols.); Wolf Willow, Stegner - a history, a story and a memory of the last Plains frontier; Gomillion Versus Lightfoot, Taper - the Tuskegee gerrymander case - precedent - making litigation over Negroes' right to vote; Form And Space, Trier - a philosophic survey of 20th century sculpture; The Guns Of August, Tuchman - a brilliant analysis of the opening days of World War I; Scott Fitzgerald, Turnbull - unforgettable re-creation of the Jazz Age novelist; The Rich Nations And The Poor Nations, Ward - potent factors in economic and political development; God, Man And The Thinker, Wells - presents opposing points of view in the philosophies of religion; The Points Of My Compass, White - urbane essays; Letters Of Oscar Wilde - meticulously edited by Rupert Hart-Davis; George, Williams - candid recital of the playwright-actor's formative years (George Emlyn Williams); Patriotic Gore, Wilson - studies in the literature of the American Civil War; Pearl Harbor: Warning And Decision, Wohlstetter - an authoritative study of a complex failure of communication.

The Glorious Fourth

If you are staying at home for the Fourth of July, why not make this a family day in the back yard, or invite the neighbors to join you in a "back yard living room" party? Plan something for every hour of the day, cook and serve your meals outside and burn up the dishes! Reserve some area for the sleepy members, and a checker board or card table for the game minded. If you need help on planning, either the cooking, or games or the making of an impromptu barbecue pit ask for help at the library. Wouldn't a book of cartoons or jokes be welcome at the party? The library has plenty, as well as books on folk dancing and folk singing.

strict School, now used by the West Andover Association. Mr. Tarbox refuted ideas that the area is suitable for industrial development. He believes the parcel, with only 466 feet of frontage on River rd., would not be usable for industry because of the relatively narrow frontage. Some local officials had felt that the land could best be used for the purpose it is zoned for - industry - and that this would be of greater tax advantage to the town.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duffy told the Selectmen that the present assessment on the land is low, and that it brings in little in the way of taxes, because of its agricultural assessment.

The Selectmen went over the financing of the school project with Mr. Tarbox and referred some matters to Town Counsel Fredrick S. O'Brien.

Principally, the Board is concerned about its authority to allow the Regional Committee to borrow money for planning, as this would commit the town to an expenditure of funds.

Mr. Tarbox said the Committee needs planning money, and believes that the 5-1 mandate of the voters last March indicates their desire to have the school. "You can't build the building without planning it", he emphasized to the Selectmen.

The problem concerns the Regional Committee's need for planning money, mostly to pay the architect a large portion of the expected fee, when preliminary plans are presented next October.

The law, according to Mr. Tarbox, requires that notice be posted in the participating towns. If the Selectmen do nothing about it, and no citizen complains, the Regional Committee is free to borrow the funds. Or, the Selectmen can take action, if this course is felt to be necessary by the local Board.

Members of the Board wonder whether, either through taking affirmative action, or by just doing nothing, they can legally bind the town to the payment of funds that have not been appropriated.

Selectman Philip K. Allen emphasized his support of the project - but he and other members stressed that the mechanics authorizing the Regional Committee to borrow money must be worked out.

During the evening, it was explained that the school is not projected for 600 boys, and the facilities are being included to allow a girls' wing at a future date.

Mr. Tarbox continually mentioned the need for a labor pool of skilled workmen in the area before industry will locate, and noted that it is difficult, if not impossible, to find employees with the required skills, and that this discourages industrial growth.

He feels that the town, as well as the area, can not grow industrially until the labor pool is created - in large part through successful operation of the new school.

Clothing Was Assembly Topic

In one of the final assemblies of the year, girls at the High School were addressed by an authority on teen-age dress and behavior, Mrs. William McClintock.

The assembly was under the direction of Miss Isabelle Phelan, dean of girls.

Mrs. McClintock emphasized the necessity for proper dress and dignity among teen-age students. Among the points she itemized were:

School clothes should be in good taste - not too tight or too short; shirt lengths should cover the knee; do not wear culottes as these are sportswear; wear shoes, not sneakers or sandals.

Makeup should be kept to a minimum; hair styles should be natural, not teased.

After school clothing should not be tight or suggestive.

Mrs. McClintock emphasized that girls should behave as ladies at all times.
